Murder at the museum - 2.5 hours

Price from £12.50* (Group leaders go free!)

A combination of Cluedo! and A Night at the Museum, this activity involves navigation, deduction and lateral thinking. The story goes that the exhibits in the Victoria and Albert Museum come alive at night and wander the halls, greeting friends and avoiding enemies. One fateful night a nobleman by the name of Capt Roland Smart was killed in cold blood. The teams trying to solve the murder will be given forensics reports and eye witness statements, but will have to explore the museum trying to prove their suspicions. At the end of the session the teams reveal their accusations and those closest to the truth gain the Order of Merit.

The Curse of the Crystal Skulls - 5 hours

Price from £19* (Group leaders go free!)

This adventure is based around the seafaring tradition of the Thames and explores some of its famous naval landmarks including the Golden Hind, HMS Belfast, the Golden Hind and Queen Elizabeth's Docks. Legend has it that there was once a famous pirate known as John Diamond, a blood thirsty cove who terrorised both banks of the Thames. As his fame increased, the British Navy became more determined to capture his ship and so Diamond decided to hide his treasure and escape to the Caribbean. He marked its location with Crystal Skulls protected by an ancient curse that promised to bring bad luck to anyone who disturbed them. Diamond never returned from the Caribbean and all that is left of the legend is an old map stored in the British library. Can your classes decipher the map, discover the skulls and locate the treasure after so many years? Use the Thames Clipper to cruise the river and learn about London's naval heritage in this exciting adventure.

The World Crime League - 4 hours

Price from £17* (Group leaders go free!)

The infamous and diabolical World Crime League is hatching a dastardly plot in Central London that will strike at the very heart of the nation. The World Crime League is moving to destroy the London Stock Exchange and only you can save the day! Using all your skills of disguise, subterfuge and cunning you must infiltrate the nefarious organisation and crack their fiendish codes. Only then can you embark on a perilous chase through the Square Mile and thwart their furtive machinations.
