Main Entrance & Reception

YHA South Downs is split across four buildings, the Farmhouse, the Long Barn, the Interpretation Centre and the Granary. The Farmhouse is the main hostel building, containing the reception and lounge areas. There is a level threshold through a manual, single leaf door which opens outwards

The reception is adjacent to the main entrance, through another manual, single leaf door. This area has a hard tiled floor and is well-lit with ceiling and wall lights. There are two armchairs, a bench and a couple of low coffee tables in this area. There is a lower level service point at the reception desk which also has an induction loop.

To move from the reception into the rest of the Farmhouse there is a shallow step down. The doorway here is quite narrow, but there is alternative access via a wider doorway with a small bump at the back of the building.

Public Areas

This is a newly refurbished building which has a good colour contrast to the walls, floors and doorways throughout the building. The corridors in the main building are all carpeted. Corridors in the other buildings are tile, linoleum or carpet. All corridors are well-lit with ceiling lights.

Due to the age of the building the Farmhouse has some steps in the corridor on the first floor. A lift provides access to the upper floors in the Interpretation Centre. The Granary and Farmhouse do not have a lift.

Each pod has a further step up onto a wooden porch which contains two plastic garden chairs with armrests and a small coffee table.
